Catholic Mood Turning Against IRA

5 More Bombs Explode in Belfast

By Bernard Weinraub BELFAST, May 23_(NYT).— Amid growing Catholic unease about the tactics of the Irish Republican Army, a wave of bombings and terror again struck Belfast today. Five bombs exploded in the center of this bleak, rain-drench-ed city, injuring 10 persons. Late this afternoon a Britishsoldier was shot in the neck by a sniper and died instantly while on patrol in the Ballymurphy section of the city.

With Belfast and Londonderry tense, the mood among many Catholics has turned uncertain even chilly, toward the IRA. The weekend murder of a 19-year-old Catholic soldier in Londonderry, on leave from his unit in Ger-many, has angered the Catholic community, especially in Londonderry. The soldier, William James Best, was buried today.

"This is the end of the road for the IRA," the Rev. Hugh O'Neill of St. Eugene's Cathedral in Londonderry said today. "This is the finish. They have lost all credibility with the people."

At today's funeral 5.000 persons, led by 25 priests from the Londonderry area, lined the streets between St. Mary's Cburch, in the Creggan area, and the city cemetery, a quarter-mile away. There were dozens of wreaths, including one of white carnations and roses signed With our deepest sympathy, the Secretary of State and Mrs. [William] Whitelaw."

The anger of the Catholic community was underlined when hundreds of women marched last, IRA headquarters in the Creggan area. Several women screamed: 'Murder, murder!" One woman shouted: "This was nothing but cold-blooded murder of one of

Hanoi Finds Nixon Visit 'Despicable'

But European Reds Seem Favorable

PARIS, May 23 (AP).—North Vietnam called President Nixon's visit to Moscow a "derk and despicable" trick to undermine support from Hanoi's allies. But initial reaction from Soviet allies in Europe seemed favorable.

Mrs. Nixon's Diplomacy Delights Newsmen

By Robert B. Semple Jr. MOSCOW. May 23 (NYT) .-At no small risk to her physical and mental serenity, an essentially private person named Patricia Nixon is practicing her own relentless brand of public diplomacy with remarkable effectiveness here in the Soviet causual rounds—schools, colleges, stores and cultural events-but she is pulling the anonymous and publicity-shy wives of the top Soviet leadership with her, and while this is novel and exhausting for the Russian women, it has been a treat for newsmen and ordinary Soviet citizens alike.

These, at least, are some of the conclusions drawn by a large group of reporters who, having nothing better to do on a day when President Nixon and his Soviet counterparts continued their private talks, decided early this morning to take a husman's holiday and follow Mrs. Nixon

Soviet Press Gives the Nixons An Unprecedented Coverage

By Robert G. Kaiser

MOSCOW, May 23 (WP),-The Soviet news media today gave Mr. And Mrs. Richard Nixon unprecedented celebrity treatment. Thirteen minutes of the 15minute main news program on Soviet television tonight was devoted to the Nixon visit and related events. This evening Izvestia, the government newspaper, published two pictures of the President and one of Mrs.

This morning Pravda, the Soviet Communist party organ, in what may have been a first, published the full text of an American President's speech—Mr. Nixon's remarks at the Kremlin banquet last night.

Such elaborate coverage is extremely unusual here, and it contradicts predictions by Soviet journalists, who had said that no big fuss would be made over the visit. On the contrary, the Nixons have been given the sort of attention that is reserved for extraordinary events.

The content of the Soviet coverage of the visit is very thin. It consisted today of official an-nouncements and the texts of speeches made last night by Mr. Nixon and Nikolai V. Podgorny, the Soviet President, plus dry commentary on television de-scribing film and video tape of the day's events. The papers also printed some predictable quotations from foreign press coverage.

Soviet news coverage often lacks content, and it is probably best measured quantitatively. On that scale, the Nixons have scored remarkably high.

Tonight's Izvestia carried eight different stories related to the visit. Two pictures on the front page show Mr. Nixon talking alone with Leonid I. Brezhnev. the Soviet leader, yesterday and the opening plenary assion of the full delegations of both countries this morning. The stories reported official announcements on the meetings, the first press conference at the press center act up for the visit, a reception held for journalists, Mrs. Nixon's visits around Moscow today and reaction to the summit in the Amerlcan and other foreign press. No original Soviet reportage or commentary was published besides the brief account of the government news agency, and also broadcast on an early-evening TV news show carried a substantive message to the public. It was a statement by Leonid Zamyatin, the Soviet spokesman during the summit talks, which he read at today's first news briefing:

The Soviet leaders attach great signficance to the conversations with President Nixon, realizing that these meetings ... are taking place in a complicated international situation. The world public is awalting relaxation of tension not only between the Soviet Union and the United States, but throughout the world. The people are looking forward to real resuits from the meetings now taking place ..."

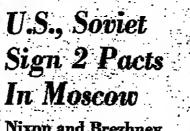

This announcement will probably be published in tomorrow's papers. By Soviet standards it is most unusual to make such a aubstantive proclamation at the beginning of a foreign states-

Today's Soviet papers also continued the week-old campaign of stories on Soviet foreign policy, this policy is supported by the Communist partly and public. Today's edition of Red Star, the Defense Ministry's paper, carried an editorial on this theme.

Diplomatic analysts here regard the campaign as defensive in tone, suggesting a lack of unanimous suport for the decision to welcome Mr. Nixon despite his mining of North Vietnam's harbors.

Nixon and Brezhnev In Three Meetings

Moscow television tonight gave quarter-hour report showing the beginning of the morning meeting, the signing of the health and environmental agreements and a tour of the city by Mrs.

The two agreements signed today were negotiated prior the bebeginning of the summit meeting, but the fact that they were signed in public ceremonies indicated at the least that no unexpected difficulties have arisen to undermine the conference.

In expressing hope for "con-crete results," Mr. Zamyatin adopted a phrase Mr. Nixon has been using. The Soviet spokes-man likewise picked up a Nixon phrase when he said that "the current talks are not directed sgainst any other country." They are being conducted in the interest of consolidating peace and all the peoples, all the he said.

He acknowledged that the talks are "going on in a complicated that could refer to Vietnam as well as other disagreements be-tween Moscow and Washington.

The Soviet attitude clearly appears to be that the two superpowers should resolve other differences and not permit the dispute over Vietnam to deflect them from their goal of improved rela-

Soviet spokesmen particularly have emphasized that the Kremlin would not agree to sacrifice support of Hanoi in a bargain for agreement on other issues or in support of a package deal with President Nixon.

"The people are expecting an easing of tension not only in the relations between the Soviet Union and the United States, but also all over the world," Mr. Zamyatin said in one of several references to the fact that the discussions cover a broad range

He said that "a conspicuous place in the negotiations will belong to matters relating to bilateral relations, bot in discussing them it is impossible to ignore the general international situa-

Referring to these comments, Mr. Ziegler recalled that the President had said he came here "not to create an atmosphere of better relations but to move constructively to reach concrete agreements that will build a foundation for the future while also attempting to improve our relations at the present time."

Consensus of Foreigners in Hanoi

Mining of North Is Called Effect

By Anthony Lewis HANOL May 23 (NYT) .- The consensus of foreign observers here now is that American mining has effectively closed North Vietnam's ports.

In Haiphong last week, officials said that mines were being cleared as they were dropped and that ships were moving in and out of the port. In Washington, the Pentagon termed such assertions categorically false.

Direct evidence remains extremely difficult to obtain. But from the shreds that are available, diplomats and others here believe it highly unlikely that shins are able to enter or leave the major harbors. This view agrees with the Pentagon posi-

A North Vietnamese official here was asked Sunday to clarify the situation in Halphong harbor. He gave an ambiguous reply.

"In Halphong we Vietnamese, cannot sit idle with our hands folded," the official said, "so the people there have done a number of things to insure that port activity continues.

"As to how, we cannot tell you" he went on. "Whether they can clear all the mines and how they can do it, it is difficult to say."

WASHINGTON, May 23 (WP). noon. About 100 protesters lock--Many of the protesters who came here to blockade the Pentagon yesterday began to reconsider the plan during the first few minutes of a discussion on tactics beld Sunday night.

The discussion leader said at the etart that the Pentagon's access routes were complicated and that precise tactics for blocking the routes had not yet been decided. The next speakers discussed legal aspects of the blockade. One said that in Virginia, where the Pentagon is slauted, throwing things in front of moving cars is a felony, punishable by up to five years in jall.

It was added that protesters would encounter not the Washington police and judges, with whom they were familiar, but Virginia police, who were describ-ed as red-necked, and Virginia judges, who were pictured as not inclined to be lenient.

About 600 persons discussed tactics for about two more hours. but for many of them it seemed that the major decision had been made in the first few minutes: not to go to the Pentagon. Many said they would seek to block access to the Forrestal

Building, a Defense Department office structure in Washington. "Mobile tactics," suggested a protester, calling for sporadic, hit-and-run activities as some people insisted on going to the Pentagon.

"I'm almost 30 years old," responded another protester, who said he favored what he called sitting-in-the-street civil disobedience. "I'm too old for mobile tactics."

Another man said he wanted to know whether blockading the Pentagon would be good politics for the peace movementit would win converts.

Vote Light in Rhode Island Contest

Turnout Is Heavy in Oregon Primary

NEW YORK, May 23 (AP),-A heavy turnout was reported today as Sen. George McGovern sought a smashing victory in the Oregon Democratic primary to gove him momentum for the crucial California contest two

The South Dakota Democrat, the only major candidate who campaigned in Oregon's important primary, faced 10 other Democrats in the contest for 34 delegates to the Democratic National Convention. A 70 percent turnout of 1.2 million registered voters was expected before polls close. In the second primary of the day, in Rhodc Island, the early turnout was light. The Oregon ballot included Sen Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, who sought to have his name removed on the ground that he is not a candidate. When he was unsuccessful, he wrote Portland newspapers asking people not to vote for him.

Wallace Commercials Of Sen. McGovern'e 10 rivals, only Rep. Patsy Mink of Hawaii campaigned here. Supporters of Alabama Gov. George C. Wal-lace ran radio and television commercials in the days preceding the voting, and his netional campaign director said be would consider one-third of the vote a good showing for the governor, who was bospitalized after being shot eight days ago.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, of Minnesota, Sen. McGovern's mefor rival for the Democratic presidential nomination, decided to bypass Oregon and concentrate on California after polls showed him behind here. California will determine 271 delegate positions

In the Republican contest, President Nixon was expected to swamp Reps, Paul N. McCloskey jr. of California and John Ashbrook of Ohio to win the 18 GOP convention delegates.

Senatorial Primary

Republican Sen. Mark O. Hstfield was favored over three rivals in a senatorial primary.

Former Sen. Wayne Morse. former Rep. Robert Duncan and State Sen. Don Willner were the main contenders for the Democratic nomination. The presidential preference was separate from the election of the men and women who will represent Oregon at the Democratic National Convention. Votes from those races won't be counted for several days.

The delegates are bound to support the preference winner for two ballots, unless the candidate releases them or fails to get 35 percent of the convention vote.

Sen. McGovern was favored to win most of the delegate contests. Prospecte were clouded by the fact that, in some districts, additional backers of the South Dekots senstor filed to compete against his official slate of delegates, raising the possibility of a split in McGovern strength ths: could elect supporters of other

In Rhode Island, there were eight Democrats and three Republicans on the ballots.

It was the state's first Presidential primary and 22 Democratic convention votes were at state in the winner-take-all con-

The low-key campaign apparently attracted little voter interest, and the early turnout was reported very light. A recent poll showed Sen: Mc-Govern with the edge in the Democratic contest, but Sen. Humphrey was the only one of the active candidates to put in a personal appearance.

On the Republican ballot were President Nixon and Reps. Paul N. McCloskey of California and John M. Ashbrook of Ohio. There were eight Republican convention votes at stake.

Yesterday, Sen. Humphrey and Sen. McGovern agreed to make their televised debating encounters a three-round series. They accepted a National Broadcasting Co. offer to match them on a special "Meet the Press' program next Tuesday. The rivals already had agreed to two debates, next Sunday and

June 4. One confrontation will be on the Columbia Broadcasting System's "Face the Nation" program and the other will be on the American Broadcasting Company's "Issues and Answers."

The NBC offer means there will be three Humphrey-McGovern meetings within the 10 days before the California primary. Sen. Humphrey laid down the challenge to debate upon his arrival in California last week.

Moon Mortars Fired to Make Seismic Echo But One Is Passed Up; Its Aim Had Changed

SPACE CENTER, Houston, May 23 (AP) .- A weapon of war redesigned into an instrument of science was exploder on the moon early today, but scientists. reported that the experiment was only partly successful.

Scientists at the Manned Spacecraft Center sent signals to a mortar package left in the Descartes Mountains of the moon by Apollo-16 last month and caused three rocket grenades to be launched.

The grenades rocketed away and exploded, sending seismic shock waves through the moon's fourth grenade was not fired, however, when instruments on the mortar-launcher indicated that it had changed position. An official said an attitude indicator shored the launcher may have pitched up several degrees after the third rocket grenade was fired.

May Be Fired Later

Scientists said the last grenade may be fired later if tests show the attitude indication is false. The three grenades that were fired flew 500, 1,000 and 2,000 feet and exploded on impact with the moon's surface. The fourth grenade is rigged to fly up to 5,000 feet before exploding. Explosions of the grenades caused seismic waves which were detected by a series of geophones installed in the lunar surface by the Apollo-16 astronants

The shock waves were expected to penetrate to about 500 feet beneath the room's surface and then bounce back up to the geophones. Erientists hope to learn more atous the substructure of the moon by measuring the velocity, streng! and fil-quency of the shock-wave echoes, The grenades are fired with the push of a button at mission central here. This sends a signal to ignite the grenade rocket, and the device flies away.

The grenades, which each cost about $10,000, are equipped with transmitters and two break wires of different lengths. By measuring the time between the parting of the first and second break wires, scientists can determine the velocity of the grenades just after hunch,

The Apollo-14 astronauts also left mortars in the moon during their February, 1971, luner visit. Officials have not fired them for fear that doing so could destroy the rest of the 'pollo-14 science

SST Write-Off Called Costlier Than Finishing

NEW YORK, May 28 (AP). -It cost the United States $122 million more to stop production of the supersonic transport plane than it would have to go ahead with it, President Nixon's special consultant on aviation said yesterday.

George Magruder, who has 28 years' experience in the eviation field and was a wellknown test pilot, was in charge of the government's SST project. He told the Aviation Space, Writers Assoclation yesterday that a year ago when he told Congress it would cost between $100 million and $200 million more to quit than to go ahead with the SST, "I was accused of being a liar." But the total hill for getting out was almost $600 milhon, he said—the result of paying back money to Boeing and others and letting thousands of workers go. To have had the huge plane flying would have cost only $476 million more than the $1.1 billion already spent, he said ...

U.K., Italian Lines Cancel Presailing Fetes After Hoax

LISBON, May 28 (AP). - A bomb threat against the Italian liner Leonardo da Vinci proved unfounded today, but two such incidents in a week prompted both the Italian and Cunard lines to cancel future visitors and presailing festivities on shipboard as a precautionary measure. Cunard's Queen Elizabeth 2 was the target of a similar threat last week. Officials called it a hoax. The 30,000-ton Leonardo da was, outbound from New York in mid-Atlantic with passengers yesterday when the Italian Line's New York office received a letter saying bombs were planted aboard and would go off unless $100,000 ransom was

Officials said the ransom was delivered to a specified location in New York, but the money was not picked up. A search at sea proved fruitless. The liner was delayed for several hours today off Estoril, Portugal, for a search by Italian and Portuguese bomb experts that also turned up nothing. After a scheduled stop at Lisbon, the ship sailed for its home port of Genoa. The Queen Elizabeth 2 halted in mid-Atlantic last Thursday after an anonymous telephone caller said bombs had been planted aboard and demanded $350,000 ransom.

VIENNA, May 23 (AP) —West German Chancellor Willy Brandt arrived today for a three-day officiat visit and talks with Austrian Chancelior Bruno Kreisky. The two chancellors are expected to review East-West relations in the light of the West German treaties signed with the Soviet Union and Poland. It was believed that Mr. Kreisky would brief his West German colleague on talks he had Sunday with President Nixon, when the President stopped over in Salzburg on his way to Moscow. The Communist-proposed conference on European security and cooperation is scheduled to be another key topic.

Austria also favors admission to the United Nations of both East and West Germany. In a recent interview, Chancellor Kreisky said that diplomatic recognition of the East German regime had to be taken into consideration following recent political developments.

Support Vote

In Bid to Allay Fears Of Cabinet Changes

By James Goldsborough PARIS, May 23 (IHT) .- Prime Minister Jacques Chaban-Delmas today demanded a vote of confidence from the National Assemhly tomorrow in order to put an end to the bickering both inside and outside the majority over government policy.

Asking from the tribune of the National Assembly what will be the fourth vote on government policy since the regime took office three years ago, the prime minister indicated that it would be a personal vote of confidence in himself and in the government. .

It was clear also that through the vote, Mr. Chaban-Delmas boped to rally support in the face of rumors that President Georges Pompidou is thinking of widespread cabinet changes in preparation for the legislotive elections next year.

Real Estate Scandals The vote will also force the Giscardist party of Finonce Minister Valery Giscard d'Estaing to soften its criticism of the UDR. its Gaullist allies in the majority. The Giscardists have been especially critical of the UDR Gaullists over a series of recent realestate scandals involving the UDR

The majority is so sensitive to scandal charges that it walked out of the National Assembly en masse today when a Communist deputy used the words "cash in" to refer to certain members of the majority.

Earlier, the UDR party itself indicated its general mood of dissatisfaction with the prime minister when it claimed that he was too often interested in "tactics rather than strategy."

At the end of his 80-minute speech today, however, Mr. Chaban-Delmas was widely applauded and should easily win the voic

Police identified the young man as Jacques Pietkiewiccz, 22. Mr. Grenouilic and onother man were accused of shooting his father as he cycled home from work last

Mr. Pietklewiecz was immediately detained by police, who had turned up in strength at the crime's reconstruction. It is normal procedure in France for the examining magistrate in charge of a case to carry out a reconstruction of the crime, with the accused present, before a trial

SIEMENS

Automating the way to the Olympics has added to our knowhow for the installation Te Tenia you may want tomorrow

The 20th Olympic Games expect a million visitors. How to get them to the sports events and back? Munich has built a rapid-transit railway system to carry them, and a subway system that is fully automatic.

It means the driver only has to press a button, and the train will stop at the next station by itself, in the right spot for its length. It means optimum speed with minimum power consumption, a train every 90 seconds, smooth travel for 68 000 passengers an hour.

Siemens has made a vital contribution to this achievement. Supplying the drives and newly developed controls of 120 rapid-transit trains and 50 underground railcars. Erecting 30 track diagram switchboxes. Introducing a new method for mounting contact rails.

Installing data-logging equipment in 100 stations for fully automatic operation controlled by process computer.

It all adds up to knowhow and production facilities in many fields,... smoothly coordinated and brought to bear on the problem. Tomorrow we can bring them to bear on your problem. We design and plan, deliver and erect. With research before and service after.

Summit and Valley

The very name "summit" suggests loneliness and isolation. Even if the modern summiteer reaches the prescribed altitude in Swiss rather than Himalayan style, climbing in a comfortable funicular to a handsome chalet, rather than footing it over glaciers and bedding out in the snow, he is still high above the valleys where the plain folk live—and the latter know it. But what is the real relationship between the valley and the summit? What, in fact, are the credentials of the summiteers?

It is no longer quite as difficult as it once was to sample public opinion in the Communist countries, to analyze the carefully modulated mix of crowds and public formalities in the greeting of visitors from abroad. One can know, for example, that at least one Soviet citizen wanted to be told why he couldn't wave flags for Nixon as he did for France's Pompidou, while another thought the American President should be hung from the nearest lamp post. There was a homely authenticity about this... similarly contrasting reactions might have been evoked on the streets of New York or

But there must be considerable doubt as to just how accurately opinion can be appraised in this manner. Any statistician would sniff at it—and the matter of how well informed the persons questioned are, how much they are conditioned by a controlled informational environment, raises another issue. It is clear enough from the visits of American newspapermen to Pyongyang, for example, that the conditioning in North Korea is extreme, purposeful and intensive. The same is true, in varying degrees, wherever the government commands the news media.

Even in the West, with the most sophisticated techniques of opinion analysis, and with a wide measure of press freedom, the state of the public mind is a much-disputed thing. There are Americans who complain that a President elected by a majority of his fellow-citizens, whose spending is controiled by two sets of legislators similarly chosen, and whose actions are subjected to criticism from a broad spectrum of publications, radio speakers and television commentators, does not really represent his country. And when opinion polls show support for his actions, the polling techniques

It can be pointed out, for example, that there was a general assumption, at the beginning of the primary campaign, that Sen. Muskie was the undisputed frontrunner for the Democratic presidential nomination. But what the polls seemed to show was refuted in the polling places, when the votes were in.

It would thus seem that the legitimacy of any summiteer's credentials can be (and is) disputed in the valley. The anarchists carry this contention to its logical end: Raze the mountains, elevate the valleys, and let everyone live on one broad, fruitful plain. But quite apart from the monotony of the thing, this is hardly practicable, when men have become too interdependent for one another's specialized services. Again, man is reduced to the rough approximation of what is best for him: to hold the summiteers accountable for their acts. And in this respect, with all allowance for error, force or fraud, the American system works

Good Beginning

President Nixon is off to a good beginning for what could be historic and productive negotiations with Soviet leaders.

He received a cordial, though not effusive, welcome when his arrival in Moscow made him the first American chief executive ever to pay a state visit to the Russian capital. Communist party Secretary-General Brezhnev, though not at the airport, was quick to stifle speculation of political chill by entering at once into a long and useful conversation with the President.

Monday night's formal state dinner provided a forum for conciliatory speeches, with Mr. Nixon heralding the opening of "a new age in the relationship between our two great and powerful nations" and Soviet President Podgorny proclaiming his country's desire to establish "not merely good but friendly relations."

There was no effort, however, to ignore the difficulties that lie ahead. Mr. Nixon made veiled reference to Vletnam and Mr.Podgorny took note of "the differences of social systems, the divergence of the positions of our states on a number of very important aspects" of the world situation.

In a real sense. Mr. Nixon's present Moscow visit is a return trip for the late Premier Nikita Khrushchev's sojourn here in September 1959 as President Eisenhower's guest. It tells much about the tensions in Soviet-American relations that more than a dozen years had to pass before Moscow reciprocated Washington's 1959 hospitality. Between those two visits the world had an overabundance of great power crises from those set off by the downed American U-2 plane in 1960 and by Soviet missiles in Cuba in 1962 to the current U.S. mining of North Vietnam's ports.

Mr. Nixon's current presence in Moscow is testimony that the forces of common interest driving the Soviet Union and the United States together have at least temporarlly proved stronger than the political, ideological and other pressures dividing them. The problem now for both is to grasp the present opportunity fully and to make progress that will help keep divisive forces from ever again gaining the upper hand. President Nixon's first day in Moscow gave reason to hope such sensible action will take place in the days immediately ahead. THE NEW YORK TIMES.

Moscow Summit Linkage

As President Nixon and Mr. Brezhnev get into their discussions in Moscow. European defense ministers are holding meetings in Brussels, which have many linkages with the Moscow summit. Lord Carrington and his fellow defense ministers from all the NATO countries except France, Iceland and Portugal are meeting as the so-called "Euro Group." This group was set up to try to give a practical focus for problems specifjcally concerning the European members of the alliance. The fact that France still abstains from NATO military planning is thoroughly regrettable: but it still leaves the Euro Group a very important, potentially supremely important, body.

This is because the defense of Western Europe is going to become more and more a matter for West Europeans. That is not to say that America is expected to renege on its adherence to the NATO treaty and obligations arising therefrom, at least not in the near future. But the mere fact that European matters form an important segment of the Nixon-Brezhnev agenda in Moscow is a clear enough indication of the way things are going.

-From the Daily Telegraph (London). * * *

The turn of events in Southeast Asia in recent weeks, the almost cynical way in which Moscow and Washington are maintaining their summit meeting, are likely to seriously damage the image of the two superpowers in the eyes of the Third World. The time when two "great leaders" of two "big powers" could settle the fate of smaller ones in private conversations, that time is really over.

-From France-Soir (Paris). * * *

Nixon's major trump as he meets the men in the Kremlin rests in the fact that, since his May 8 peace offer, he has convinced his compatriots that he is the one who is right and that it is Hanoi which is wrong.

-From Le Figaro (Paris). U.S. Gun Laws

The American system must assume responsibility along with the trigger-puller for Gov. George Wallace's shooting and the numerous murder cases happening in America. Buying a pistol in America is as easy as buying a lighter. If America does not change this system which gives criminals facility to kill people, then perhaps all political personalities will have no feeling of safety. As the Wallace shooting proves, there are many sick people in America and the laws allow them to buy their weapons of destruction unhampered and unrestricted. The U.S. Congress must share the blame for American violence, past, present and, sadly, inevitably, the future.

Thus a tense situation is now more so.

Summit: New Fluid Pattern in Power Politics

By Murrey Marder

MOSCOW.—From its opening hours, the first American-Soviet summit conference here illustrated the new, fluid pattern of world power relations now in play between the United States, China and the Soviet Union.

Perhaps the parallelism between the form of President Nixon'e first greetings in Peking and in Moscow was only coincidence. If so, it was an exceptional coinci-

It took just two hours and 15 minutes from the time the President's "Spirit of "76" jetliner braked to a halt at Vnukovo airport to produce a meeting between Nixon and Soviet Communist party chief Leonid L Brezhney. Four months ago in Peking, Chinese Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung kept President Nixon waiting a bit longer; Mao granted him an audience four hours after arrival. But there was longer historical justification for delay—the Mao-Nixon meeting symbolically ended 22 years of frozen relations between the United States and

Affront Absorbed

Monday night's meeting in Moscow could have had even more immediate justification for chill from the hosts' standpoint. namely President Nixon's May 8 order to mine the harbors of North Vietnam, primarily to block Soviet shipping from delivering war-support supplies. But the Soviet Union decided to absorb that affront because it has larger priorities.

There is no such thing as a "normal" summit conference because of the collapsible history of summitry. This one started immediately with its own special

In contrast to the Peking summit in February, which was essentially a ground-breaking exercise to open a new relationship, the Moscow summit is the most elaborately prepared conference in the history of summitry.

As a result, Brezhnev immediately got down to specific business in his sudden first meeting with President Nixon by starting discussion of the agenda even before the first formal dinner Monday night.

According to unofficial Russian and other sources here, the Soviet Union is concerned that it may be faced with an interlocking package proposal from the United States to put new pressure on Soviet support for North Vietnam. That is, that the United States may seek to tie completion of a Strategic Arms Limitation Agreement, trade, space cooperation, and other accords, into a single bargaining package.

There has been no known suggestion on the American side that it is the United States' intention to the negotiations together in this tough bargaining form, and American officials were not immediately available for comment on the speculation. What American officials have been indicating to newsmen is that it is the United States' intention to press ahead with the array of potential accords on as broad a front as possible despite the two nations' great differences on Vietnam.

By diplomatic standards, there was unusual blumtness about the purpose of this conference in the courteous but candid first official greeting to Nixon from President Nikolai V. Podgorny at Monday night's dinner.

Podgorny said aloud what diplomats usually reserve for private talk about the bazards of summitty. Labeling this meeting a momentous event, Podgorny said its effect on the international situation will produce further developments "either toward a lasting peace and stronger universal security or toward greater tension." Podgorny added that the Soviet Union will make every effort "to achieve positive results" and said "we expect a similar

President Nixon projected a similar expectation for "concrete agreements" rather than for simply the "spirit" of accord, noting that "two years of careful preparation" have gone into this meeting. There was no "linkage" tie in the President's language, as he listed as illustrative areas of potential accord a strategic arms agreement and "progress in economic cooperation." But the President noted that "there is hard negotiating ahead" in order to prove "this week" that "the era of negotiations between the two most powerful nations in the world has begun."

Much at Stake

At least rhetorically, two sides in an East-West summit conference never have started out with such mutual insistence on tangible results.

No one on this conference scene doubts that there is far more at stake than comparable. rhetoric. For the Soviet Union, open disquiet about what approach from the American might evolve out of the newfound and embryonic American relationship with Peking, Moscow's ideological rival, has quickened its desire to move rapidly into greater reduction of tension with the West. For the Nixon administration, the unpredictability of the outcome in Vietnam has intensified its desire to display foreign policy successes else-where. Each of the three major powers in turn is warily watching the power interplay of the other

> But what is at stake in Moscowthis week is by no means just power maneuvering. There are highly important questions of nuclear arms limitation on the bargaining table, involving high strategy and, potentially, many millions of dollars, plus the pos-sibility of new economic ties between the United States and the Soviet Union that could in time have aignificant consequences for

East-West trade patterns. On both sides of the summit, on the opening night, all that is being forecast with assurance is that this is one of the most taxing tests of tangible summitry

One consequence of his decision to receive Nixon despite the latter's hard-nosed rebuff to Moscow in Vietnam has been increasing nervousness in China. The Chinese don't like anything that might relax tensions between Russia and the West. The latter could make the Soviet war machina feel more free to reinforce its eastern border, where it now has 44 divisions facing China.

Bonn Action Noted

Within the past month Brezhnev has surmounted two threats to this search for Western relaxation. After a knife-edge debate, Bonn decided to ratify a friendlier relationship with Moscow and East Europe, thus further facilitating the current Soviet policy that focusses its dynamism on Asia. And, by welcoming Nixon despite the U.S. blockade of North Vietnam, the Russian boss has made further tension-reducing accords inevitable.

Lately French impressries have been gambling heavily on adaptations of English and American scripts. There have been many losses. But it looks as if Lars Schmidt has won the public with "Move Over, Mrs. Markham." which he brought from the Strand to the Montparnasse Gaston Baty where Marcel Mithois's adaptation is known as "Le Saut du Lit." Jean Le Poulain's direction keeps it on the frantic go.

The Gaston Baty customsrily houses theatrical works with a higher IQ. But Mr. Schmidt has diagnosed the popular pulse accurately. This is the time of year for theatrical foolery and this farce meets the demand for

"Le Saut du Lit" is broad and primitive. It is a muddle of misunderstandings, misidentifications and missed rendezvous. A husband must serve as his own butler: a dignified old lady is forever happening upon couples engaged in illicit kissing; sandwich travs are dropped; there is even a Dutch dialect bit.

In the wild, slapstick course of the play, it embraces most of the resources of the burlesque show—affectionate pats on the wrong posteriors, scantily clad damsels, a dumb-blonde maid. bectic chases about the bedroom. Only pie-throwing and seltzer water seem to have been omitted. The spectators bowl happily.

This is the second play by the English suthors Roy Coopey and John Chapman to have met with success in Paris. Their earlier "Not Now, Darling" (the French version was called "Vison Voyageur") packed the Gymnase two springs ago. This proves that French and English playgoers are amused by the same

The TSE group which presented that witty summary of the performing arts across the ages, "Histoire du Théâtre" last year, is now at the Salle Gemier (Palais on Chaillot) with a strange new spectacle, "Comédie Policière," a satirical travesty of detective fiction. It is dexterously performed, but it is too exacting and slow in developing-with a commère announcing each scene in measured tones. The result is that it runs on longer after its bedtime. But these TSE artists are clever and have original and engaging ideas. Their work world literary cabaret than to the formal stage.

Clive Barnes reported in The New York Times: "Go expecting Helio Dolly or Purile' (and I loved both) and you will possibly be disappointed. Meet this one on its own untidy, footstomping terms. It has fizz, guts and honesty." Associated Press critic William Glover pinpointed the flaw of the production in its "flimsy" story-about two demons in human form who crash a Saturday night party and attempt to break it up. (They fall. One demon falls in love with the girl of the house-and they live happily ever after). Around his fantasy, Glover says, Van Peebles bas a "motley of jubilant neighborhood types who lustily sing and dance through an episodic montage more amusing

you're not going to New York,

Forget the idea that New York is the only way into America. It isn't, Try routing by Montreal or Toronto, and you'll be glad you did. Many US cities are actually nearer that way for a start, and there are connections to more than 60 of them! Then there's the congestion problem that we don't have. Canada's gateway airports are clear and easy, with far less risk of infuriating delays. So no hanging around. And Air Canada flights from 11 European cities are all ready to speed you on your way.

You won't see much of Canada but you'll like the bit you do. Because we'll treat you with consideration.

No getting on buses to go from terminal to terminal or airport to airport. And we'll get you through the US Customs and Immigration with speed and simplicity which saves you time on arrival in the USA.

In the air, too, you'll get civilised hospitality, the best a big friendly airline can offer. We cover more North American cities than any other transatlantic airline-and from London and Paris we've got 747s for extra comfort.

Air Canada's way to the States is the easy one. Don't forget

FORK, May 25 (NYT) problems for the smooth execution of policy. The disagreement is of long standing, but analysis said that it could come to a head today when the Federal Open Market Committee (FOMC)—the seven members of the Fed plus five of the 12 Reserve bank presidentsis scheduled to meet to determine

> In many ways, market sources say, the situation is reminiscent of the mid-1950s, when deep differences between William Mc-Chemoy Martin jr., then Fed chairman, and Allan Sproul, who was president of the New York bank, eventually led in 1956 to Mr. Sproul's early retirement.

monetary policy for the coming

Despite the parallels, however, there has been no hint what-soever that Alfred Hayes, who is Mr. Sproul's successor, has any intention of resigning his $90,000a-year post prior to normal retire-ment on July 4, 1975.

Low Profile So Far So far, the policy debate has had a very low profile, despite its intensity. The most visible signs have been two dissents by Mr. Hayes from decisions of the POMC (on Jan. 11 and Feb. 15) that selected various measures of the total reserves that commercial member banks of the Federal Reserve System must hold against their deposits as the primary bank operations. Because the results of FOMC meetings are not revealed until three months after the fact, the minutes of the February meeting are the most recent that are

Of the two dissents by Mr. Hayes, the first was by far the

"Mr. Hayes considered the emphasis placed on total reserves as an operating target," the report of the January meeting said, 'to be an undesirable step: in his judgment, reserves were much less meaningful than other measures, such as the monetary and credit aggregates and interests rates, as an instrument for working toward the committee's basic economic objectives."

According to the February re-port. Mr. Hayes "did not favor placing as much emphasis as contemplated on reserves as an operating target; he preferred to market conditions for that pur-

In April the New York bank published a long article in its official Monthly Review that in effect argued against the committee's decision to focus on total reserves. And the bank held an educational seminar for newsmen that, in its basic thrust, did the same thing.

Committee Power

Partly as a consequence of the Martin-Sproul fight-in which Mr. Martin sought unsuccessfully to remove the New York bank from having direct control of the Fed's daily operations in the open market there is no question of the FOMC's power to implement its decisions. According to Philip Braver-man, a monetary aconomist at Chase Manhattan Bank, the Fed's greater emphasis on controlling monetary aggregates (total reserves, for example) could mean a more example; course for short-term interest (total rates but a amoother course for the over-all copnomy.

Aberdeen Sees Boom From North Sea Oil

ABERDEEN, Scotland, May Scottish firms, But, he says, 23 (AP-DJ) -Aberdeen, the large Scottish city directly facing the major petroleum finds in the North Sea, is set to become the oil capital of Europe. So says the North East Scotland Development Authority.

Some Aberdeeners, however, have their own special worries.
The fishermen, who have always been the town's most important industry, grumble about the sudden priority being given are wondering how they can sell their services to the oil men.

Many worry that this city of 185,000 will not benefit as it should. The oil, after all, is out at sea. Stavanger, across the North Sea in Norway, is beckening to be a support and administrative base for the oil companies. Other Scottish and English cities also offer com-

Competition Problem

Eight exploration rigs now are working off Scotland. British Petroleum, which has drilled three wells in the Forties field, estimates that its investments within the next few years will total about $780 million. Jack Birks, general manager of BP's exploration department, said recently that North Sea reserves are estimated at 4 bil-Hon barrels.

David Barran, chairman of Shell Transport & Trading Co., estimates that two-thirds of the investment, to be made Scottish waters could come the question is whether Scotland, or indeed Britain, can match international competitors in manufacturing the oil-pro-duction equipment and pipe. The answer to that question has yet to be found," he adds.

Scotland could use the stimulus. It is one of Britain's depressed areas. While unemployment throughout Britain is 4.2 percent of the work force, the figure for Scotland is 7.1 percent. Aberdeen, with 4.1 per-cent, is relatively well off, but its economy languished during

The Development Authority estimates that there will be 25 to 30 rigs in Scottish waters by the end of next year. They and the growing company installations provided to serve them will need maintenance and support services of all kinds. The authority expects oil to create 5,000 jobs in the Aberdeen area by 1975. Already, 80 firms have set up in Aberdsen in the past 18 months to serve the growing oil industry, and the arrivals rate is about one firm a week.

Boom Coming Aberdeen is not showing many physical effects of the oil money ret, but William A. Col-clough, director of town planning, says it will not take long. About 18 companies have expressed interest in putting up hotels, and he expects four or five new office buildings in the downtown region within a few years. Much of the largesse, however, is going elsewhere. Contracts for drilling platforms and other hig projects are going to internationally-known firms like Brown & Root. And the oil companies are locating their installations at various points along the coast. BP, for instance, has altuated its ship-supply services at Dundee, about 80 milee south of Aberdeen. The harbor is deeper, BP

That is a sore point here. The harbor board embarked some time ago on construction of a new market for the fishermen the city's chief source of revenue in the past. However, work on the market has been halted, and the board is devoting its resources-including a $3,3-million government grant -to developing the harbor.

Town planner Colclough thinks prospects are bright, however-if local businessmen and government move quickly "How do you adjust suddenly?" he saks. "You've got to change your philosophy. You've got to go out and grasp opportunities."

Yugoslav Money Supply BELGRADE, May 23 (AF-DJ).

—The national bank said today it has decided to withdraw 850 million dinars ($50 million) from circulation after records showed that money in circulation rose 4.8 billion dinars ($282.8 million) in the first four months of this year, compared with an increase of 5.2 billion dinars planned for the whole year. The sharp in-crease is ascribed to an unpre-cedented rise in foreign exchange

Treasury Nomination

WASHINGTON, May 23 (Reuters).—Assistant Treasury Secretary Edwin S. Cohen has been nominated as an Under Secretary of the Treasury, the White House announced today. A spokesman said Mr. Cohen will replace Charls Walker, who has been nominated to be Deputy Secretary of the Treasury.

The helpful bank is part of the local scene in over 30 lands.

Shrove Tuesday has ladies flipping their wrists in the annual Pancake Day race. It's been happening in the town of Olney in Buckinghamshire for over 500 years.

While the Royal Bank hasn't been in Britain quite that long, our roots are deep. Deep enough to get involved with the people. And their customs.

In Britain there are 300 of us. Royal Bankers.

We know the country. Just ask us. And see how helpful we can be.

CREDIT DU NORD

e Annual General Meeting of the Shareholders of CREDIT NORD was held on May 3, 1972, under the chairmanship Monsieur Louis Charles de FOUCHIER. of the two trends which ve influenced banking operations in 1971; a continuous line of the monetary market rate and an immeasurable eleration of banking competition.

results of the combination of these two factors-which dd have had unfortunate consequences—have been tempered the development of the distributed credits and by an increase spite of a worrisome increase in general expenses of all ds. the 1971 Financial Year of CREDIT DU NORD has been orable, as in previous years, and the profitability of its rations has remained good, although slightly inferior to t of the preceding period, the main cause being the expand of the CREDIT DU NORD itself. In order to improve situation through an increase in productivity, the com-or and organization services have been extensively devel-d; and it is to be hoped, as far as the results of the rent Financial Year can be foreseen, that the dwindling the profit margin from interest because of a general decline rates, will be offset by the increased activity development e statement presented to the General Meeting by the Board Directors has called attention to the fact that, in spite of inevitable repercussions on the French economic situation a result of the serious disturbances that affected the interional mometary system in 1971, the main objectives of the elle Administration regarding the exterior improvement, the rease of industrial production and the struggle against inflance, have been attained on different levels.

th a total of Fr. 7,328 million, the balance sheet as of cember 31st, 1971, shows a progression of 22% due parliarly to the increase; in Assets, of Credits to Customers is Pixed Capital; and in Habilities to the increase of Company Oredit Accounts tellents deposits resent Fr. 5,476 million, or an increase of 25% over the ceding financial year).

order to expand and reinforce the implantations in the irse of the 1971 financial year, two new subsidiaries were ned in DLJON and AIX-EN-PROVENCE; also created were med in DIJON and AIX-EN-PROVENCE; also created were permanent main offices and 7 part-time offices which, in mber, represent an exceptional increase of close to 7% of networks. This effort will be maintained in 1972 by the ming of new registered offices to strengthen the implantance of CREDIT DU NORD in the North, the Champagna and regundy regions, and on the Mediterranean coast, the area of foreign relations the hard-the area of foreign relations, the bank has unswervingly tsued its interventions on the market of international ancing, thus expanding both in Europe and on the other riments, its participations, in large multinational operations, esubsidiaries have pursued their activity and the consolidated lance sheet of the Group as of December 31, 1971, totals 7,985 million, showing a volume of clients resources of 5,968 million (compared with Fr. 4,789 millions in 1970). the meeting approved the accounts for the financial year such showed, after depreciation, provisions and taxes, a net ofit of Pr. 21,032,131, independently of a net long-term preciation of Pr. 5,555,145 allocated to an item "long-term preciation reserves."

ie meeting approved the distribution of a global revenue of ne meeting approved the distribution of a global revenue of 8.25 per share of which a dividend of Fr. 5.50 will be paid of May 15, 1972, against remittance of the coupon No 37 us a fiscal credit of Fr. 2.75 talready paid to the Treasury). Sum of Fr. 3,000,000 has been allocated to reserves. Which we have reached Fr. 83,693,769, taking into account the long-tm appreciation but excluding the provision for investments nounting to Fr. 9,728,000, while on December 31, 1970, reserves ter allocation totalled Fr. 60,026,024 and the provision for vestments Fr. 3,573,230 vestments Fr. 3,673,230. n the other hand, the meeting re-elected Monsieur André HIRLEZ as Administrator.

ne meeting finally authorized the Board of Directors to occed in one or two stages to issue dependires in the amount

A spurious charitable per-formance by South on the dia-gramed deal enabled him to bring home a slam contract in which there were two apparently unavoidable losers. He had reached an over-optimistic level because his partner had failed to solve a bidding problem.

North-South were using negative doubles, and North was in a dilemma after West overcalled one club with one spade because a double would have been a take out. He could still have doubled. and followed with three no-trump on the next round. Or he could have jumped to two no-trump, or responded two diamonds. All these bids would have led to the normal, simple three no-trump contract.

Unfortunately, North was in too much of a hurry. He knew that he wanted to play in three no-trump and made that bid immediately, thus misdescribing his hand. South therefore assumed that his partner held a standard three no-trump re-sponse, roughly equivalent to a no-trump opening bid, and jumped directly to six clubs. The dummy was a disappointment.

West made the passive lead of a club, and the declarer saw no hope of making 12 tricks by direct means. His only hope was to give the defense their sure trump trick and hope they would not take their heart trick. So when East played the club king, South charitably let him win. As West had bid spades, East led back that suit, thus falling into South's cunning trap. The spade ace was taken, the trumps were drawn, and a diamond e succeeded.

South discarded a heart on the third round of diamonds, ruffed the fourth round, and led out all his remaining trumps. At the 11th trick, West was forced to surrender. He could not keep the heart ace and the queen-jack of spades and the slam was made.

O JERUSALEM

By Larry Collins and Dominique Lapierre. Maps and Illustrations. Simon & Schuster. 637 pp. 1

FINERE is something timeless in this account of the battle for Jerusalem in the spring of 1948, Arabs tried to smash the The details are new, but not the pattern. Jerusalem is one of the oldest, perhaps the oldest city in recorded history, and most of the record is one of war. Revered by the Western world and, like Athens, a city that has a spot in the heart of every cultivated man, it has nevertheless been on the receiving end of unmeasured violence.

Invested, leveled, it is a city no one would willingly let die. And it is this very loyalty that is the cause of the conflicts that have troubled it and the cause of its survival. As a place it must be remarkable; as an idea it is even more so. An attachment that lasts for 2,500 years and has as much power to move men after these centuries suggests a quality as miraculous as any occurrence in the Bible.

Yet the attitude of exclusive possession, of a special relationship to a city most Jews in the last 2,000 years have not seen or lived in must appear to other people as something a little weird. Yet this relationship is not something merely asserted. It is a truth as self-evident to the people who created the new state as certain other truths were self evident to our founding fathers. When the Arabs moved in to crush Israel in 1948, there must have been desperate fighting everywhere, but none more fierce than in Jerusalem.

The emphasis in "O Jerusalem" is on the small engagement, the individual action and on the character of the man behind it. But the authors have so arranged them that the small events fit into the larger history, the small clash into the greater strategy. The jockeying for position, the accumulation of arms, the planning for military action began months before the withdrawal of the English from Palestine. In this regard the Jews suffered from an enormous handicap: they were woefully undersupplied and could do little about. They were not yet a nation and therefore had little standing in the markets of the world. But if they did not get arms they might never become a nation.

Up to the hour that she left, England acted as a mandatory power and confiscated what the Jews tried to bring in. Small arms might be spirited ashore, but artillery, anti-tank weapons, armor, planes these could not lightly be passed through the British screen. In addition the Jews knew that they had to hold on to every inch of territory they had. Even the idea of surrendering a piece was abhorrent.

They tried to supply brethren in the city and yoys. The results were b The English not wishing t come embroiled, merely pounded matters for the And although the Jews reasonably well organized, were separatist military unif wanted to act autonomous situation was far from ros

Jenkins, a 20-game winner over each of the last five seasons, went the distance for the seventh time this season, walking only one and striking out four.

Orioles Finally Defeat Pirates-In Exhibition

WABHINGTON, May 33 (UPI). -Sacrifice flies by Paul Blair and Dave Johnson highlighted a : three-run eighth inning as the Baltimore Orioles defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates, 5-2, before 38,448 fans in the Children's Hospital benefit exhibition game last night.

Willie Stargell cracked a tworun homer in the first inning off Oriole starter Dave Leonhard to give Pittsburgh the lead, Baltimore scored once in the first inning on a Mery Rettenmund double and a Boog Powell single off Pirate starter Nelson Briles— who beat the Orioles once in last year's World Series won by Pitts-

The Orioles tied it in the third inning off Ramon Hernandez when Rettenmund was hit by a pitch, took second on a walk and scored on Blair's single. It was the first game in Washington since the Senetors left for credibly, two of his middle men Texas eight months ago.

Frazier Ready for a Hot Time in Omaha Ring

OMAHA, Neb., May 23 (AP).-The tempersture in the ring may give hearyweight cham-pion Joe Frazier more trouble Thursday night than his unranked opponent, Ron Stander of Council Bluffs, Iowa.

The 10,000-seat Omaba Civic Auditorium, scene of the scheduled 15-round fight, is not air conditioned, and in previous fights there at this time of year, the temperature in the ring has been as high as 100 degrees. This is our secret weapon," said Dick Noland, Stander's manager. Twe seen guys absolutely with there. Hot weather's going to help us.

Franier and his manager, Yank Durham said the heat would have no effect on the fight.
"We're gonna be there," said Durham. "We're not going to leave because it's hot. It's gonna be just as hot in their corner as in ours. Besides, we've been training in the heat."

By Brian Glanville LONDON, May 23 (THT).— Every now and then, observed an acid Frenchman on the execution of Admiral Byng a couple of centuries ago, the Eng-lish shoot an admiral "to encourage the others." They do not, however, shoot their soccer menagers, even in the most metaphorical sense, which is why, for all his recent failures, Sir Alf Ramsey will doubtless manage the 1974 World Cup team —assuming he gets it to West Germany.

England's sagging soccer prestige tumbled egain tonight as it was shocked by Northern Ireland, 1-0, in the British internetional championship et Wembley. It was Northern Ireland's first victory over England in 15 years and it did it without its star, 26-year-old George Best, who earlier this week announced his retirement from soccer. England's reserve goalle Peter Shilton presented the Irish with their goal in the 34th minute. He dropped the ball after a corner kick and Terry Neill, Ireland's player-manager, had an easy task

tapping the ball into the empty

It was Ireland's sixth victory - in 79 matches with England. On Saturday, England plays gow, in the oldest international match of all: now a century old, in fact. The Scots, under the enthusiastic and flamboyant managership of Tommy Docherty, thair former halfback, will be as anxious to win as ever. For Scotsmen, not even the World Cup has tha reality of these games against England. Scotland probably has more sheer talent available than England, es evidenced by the fect that Docherty has even taken it upon himself to leave out Celtic's brilliant right-half, Bohby Murdoch, for many of us the best in the position in Britain. But that still leaves players of the caliber of Billy Bremner and Eddie Gray of Leeds, Celtic's Jimmy Johnstone, a great tormentor of English defenses in the past, and Denis Law, Manchester United's indestructible goal scorer and an international for more than a decade.

In Berlin, where England drew cautiously and sometimes over physically with West Germany, thus slipping out of the Netions Cup, Ramsey seemed to have lost his nerve. Having gone down 3-1 at Wembley, England needed a victory by at least two goals to survive, but by picking a 4-4-2 formation in which, almost inwere destroyers pure and simple.

Ramsey threw away any chance lessly energetic Standard Liège there might be. Humiliated at man is one of the best midfield Wembley, he seemed more concerned with saving face than saving England.

Home advantage will be a great help to the Belgians next month, when they stage the finals of the Notions Cup. What they seem to have recovered is the fighting spirit which enabled them surprisingly to qualify for the last World Cup, but which had quite left them by the time they got to Mexico. It is a great pity that Wilfried Van Moer, the star of their victory over Italy in Brus-sels, should have been ruthlessly kicked and fractured by Bertini, so that he is almost certain to miss the finals. The stocky, end-

Flett Switches From NHL Team To WHA Raiders

NEW YORK, May 23 (UPD.— Right wing Bill Flett, in the National Hockey League for five years, has signed a muti-year contract with the New York Raiders of the new World Hockey Association, it was announced yesterday.

Flett, 28. was selected by the expansion draft and remeined with them until he was traded to the Philadelphia Flyers midway through the 1971-72 campaign. Flett scored 18 goals and 22 assists for 40 points last season. He is the first NHL player to be signed by the WHA club.

3 Europeans Sign LOS ANGELES, May 23 (UPI).—The Los Angeles Sharks today became the first club in the new World Hockey Association to sign European players with the announcement the club had signed two Yugoslevians and a Hungarian. The Sharks signed goalic Joseph Antone Gale and winger Rudy Hitti of the Yugoslavian national team and center Zoltan in Hungary.

ATLANTA, May 23 (UPI) .-Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion, one of the highest scoring players in National Hockey League history, was named head coach yesterday of the New Atlanta NHL team. Geoffrion, 41, spent 16 years as player in the NEL with Montreal and New York and has been serving as a Ranger scout. He had a brief stint as coach of the Rangers in 1968.

players in Europe. England was criticized, quita properly, for their harsh tackling in Berlin, but nothing that they did was as grave as what happened to Van Moer. In Italy, there is the usual, futile egonizing reappraisal. A couple of days after the elimination of its disappointing team, I joined in a linked radio discussion with Artemio Franchi, president of the Italian Football Federation, and others, in which peo-ple spoke of the disappointment, after Italy's success in reaching the final of the 1972 World Cup. That success, I insisted, was illusory. Nothing, indeed, could have been worse for Italian football, which has been sick for years, tactically sick with catenaccio, morally sick with its false economy, its absurdly large salaries and bonuses, its unending deficits, and the fear and negativity they combine to bring about. Since no Italian club or manager seems to have the courage to do away with catenaccio, there seems little hope of any real improvement.

It is extraordinary to reflect that such was the Italian resistance to the defensive philosophy of the third back game, born in England in 1925 after the change of the offside law, that they resisted it till after 1939. It was then that Fulvio Bernardini, still a manager there and once a great attacking center-half, wrote the first, full exegests of the tactics, after England and Italy had drawn 2-3 in Milan. Yet Italy had twice played England in the previous six years using the third back game and W formation. Oh for those happy days of tactical in-

The Secret Cabinet

By Russell Baker

tough, dynamie, plain-speaking, abrasive, rich, powerful, charming, smart, fascinating, hardworking, ambitious John Connally has resigned from President Nixon's cabinet. Who knows who the other ...embers of the cabinet are? This Finding out was not easy, and the White House didn't help any.

They insisted that the President. who is said to know all the cabinet members by name, was too busy packing for Moscow to come to the telephone. They said they had a list of the cabinet members, but it was classified. They couldn't say why it was classified. The reason it was classified was also classified, so they said. Pretty obviously, there wasn't any classified list. The White House simply didn't know who was in the cabinet.

Baker

In any event, some hard investigative reporting was called Oh, everybody knew that the Justice Department was being run by Richard Kleindienst, of TTT affair, and that the Defense Department was under the control-using that word very loosely—of Melvin Laird. heyond that all was uncertainty.

By the skillful use of cash to loosen tightly sealed lips, by the daring theft of revealing interoffice memos, and by tapping the Soviet Embassy's private line to Moscow and breaking their secret code, this columnist was able to learn the ideotity of every member of the cabinet.

The Secretary of State is, as widely reported in the press. William P. Rogers. It was relatively easy to confirm this by locating a malcootent at the State Departmeot. He is one of several foreign service officers who spend their working hours playing ticktack-toe with Mr. Rogers in the secretary's office. What infurlates the Secretary's State Department opponents is that Rogers has become unbeatable at tick-tack-toe and never WASHINGTON.—All right, so lets anybody else win. This is everybody now knows that because he is preparing with relentless concentration for the day when he will get Prof. Henry Kissinger into his office, challenge him to a game and impose a humiliating defeat upon the supposedly brilliant Kissinger.

There is also a Secretary of Housing and Urban Development the cabinet agency that supervises the housing shortage and development of urban blight. He is George Romney, the old Michigan wunderkind who ran for President in 1967, a year when there wasn't any election. President Nixon felt sorry for "wrong-year Romney," as cruel Washingtonians nicknamed him.

The Commerce Department is not a branch of the Pentagon. It has its own secretary. His name is Paw-Paw P. Sycamore. although that is not the name he uses as Secretary of Commerce. For that job he uses a secret alias.

This is because Sycamore is one of the busiest men in the cabinet. He also serves as Secretary of Interior, using the alias Rogers C. B. Morton," and as Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, using the alias "Elliot L. Richardson."

Paw-Paw. as he was always called on Capitol Hill, was Senate doorkeeper to the minority when Nixon was first elected to Congress and impressed the President-to-be with the quiet ambition-free efficiency with which he could keep a door. As President, Nixon's interest focused on foreign policy. Departments that dealt with domestic affairs might put a crimp in spending for Vietnam if allowed to fall into the hands of ambitious administrators. By appointing Paw-Paw at Commerce, Interior and HEW, the President gets quiet, ambition-free, efficient doorkeeping and—a bonus in economy—three secretaries for the price of oue.

The Secretary of Transportation is named Volpe, and the Secretary of Agriculture Butz. Both were photographed with the President when they were appointed and are seen in Washington from time to time. Rumors that there is a Secretary of Labor are unfounded.

The Hound of Candé and the Windsors

PARIS (IHT).—Every newspaperman who has been up to his neck in daily journalism for as long as I have (45 years) and then finds himself sitting on the sidelines, must experience from time to time. as I do, a nostalgic regret for his more hectic days whenever stirring news developments begin building up. The exreporter notes with a certain incredulity that news keeps right on happening without his assistance, a clearly aberrant state of affairs.

The compensation for this relegation from activity comes in the sense of relief which he feels, quite frequently, when certain deadly events (or nonevents which the public has been conditioned to regard as events) shape up, and it is possible for him to think, "Thank God I don't have to cover that!"

Ingenious Exercises

A minor example of this mollifying category was the recent familial sipping of tea in Neully by the royal couple of England and the Duke and Duchess of Windsor. The imbining of tea (is five o'clock, as we say in French) especially by Englishmen, is an agreeable traditional rite, as commonplace and unnewsworthy as brushing one's teeth. Nevertheless, if I had still been in harness, I would have had to manufacture some copy out of it. however difficult it might have been to whip up a froth on this modest appealing homely beverags. I would, in short, have been precipitated back to the time, somewhere in the 1930s, when the duke and the duchess were preparing to marry.

They were staying at the Château ds Cande in the Loire valley, waiting quietly and unspectacularly for the day of the wedding, as any well-bred couple doing nothing whatever to satisfy the insatiable appetite of the public, or at any rate of editors, for reams of copy on the royal doings. The chateau was besieged by an army of reporters, photographers and newsreel men (there was, mercifully, no television in those days). Desperation provoked invention, and some particularly ingenious exercises of the imagination were served up in the guise of information. an activity at which I must admit the girls were better than the boys. It was a woman reporter who revealed that Mrs. Simpson had decided to dye her hair blue to match her wedding gown and another who depicted her disappointment at not having been granted the title of royal duchess since she had already embroidered her underwear with the initials "H.G." for "Her Grace."

I was luckily not with the pack of hounds at Candé, but I was overnight man at the United Press office in Paris, and at 6 am every morning I would hear the cable machine in the corner splutter suddenly into activity. That was midnight in New York the hour at which some fresh and ambitious editor would take over the foreign desk, and I knew without looking at it what the message would say: WHAT ARE WINDSORS DOING? What indeed? I felt that if I wired back, truthfully, SLEEPING, New York would not be

My usual recourse, in this difficult situation, was to step out onto the balcony, bestow a cursory glance upon the weather which, without any competition from the population, was at this hour in undisputed occupation of the empty Boulevard des Italiens, and, armed with this meteorological documentation, compose a lyrical description of the Windsors waking up to the cheerful chirping of birds or the gentle pelting of the leaves by refreshing rain-drops, as the case might be—quite undeterred by the detail that the Loire, near whose banks they were staying, is the great weathershed of France There was no danger of being caught in the act of counterfeiting, for my harassed colleagues at Cande could be counted upon, at some time during the day, to provide every possible version of the weather, from sunstroks heat to cloudbursts accompanied by waterspouts, earthquakes and volcanic eruptions.

Prince of Wales

In those days I always thought of the Duke of Windsor as the Prince of Wales, though he had already been Edward VIII. and for that matter still do, for he had be-come firmly established in my mind under that title when I was a Chicago Tribune correspondent in London, As Prince of Wales, he popped up rather often in my professional life, a fact which has already been echoed in this paper, where I have told the stories of the grapevine Fleet Street account of the prince's recall from Africa to authorize the extraction of a tooth from King George Vs taw CET. Aug. 4, 1971) and of the monumental blunder of the Paris Chicago Tribune in publishing an entirely imaginary account of a blithe murder by the prince of a British Boy Scout (IHT, July 27, 1971).

The other hero of another episode was Vincent Sheehan, then Paris correspondent of the home edition of the Chicago Tribune. He entered the office one afternoon, began tapping out a story, paused, thought a moment, and turned to the office boy, a Cockney implausibly washed up in the Paris office of an American newspaper.

"Skiney," he said, "this story is going to take me longer than I thought. Run down to the Rue Lamartine entrance and tell the Prince of Wales to step across the street and have a drink until I finish it. He's waiting in a taxi."

Sidney's universe did a double back flop and he came out of it gasping. "I sy," he said, "you don't mean you left is ryal ighre as wyting in a taxt!" Then the only possible explanation washed over him in great waves of reassurance, and he ended triumphently, "Yon're pulling my leg!"

"Stop wasting time," Sheehan said, "and do what I told you."

Thunderbolt

Sidney crept down the stairs quaking, to find that there really was a taxl waiting outside the Tribune's door. Seated calmly inside it, unaware of lese majesté, was the Prince of Wales. Prepared for the fatal stroke of a thunderbolt at any instant. Sidney somehow managed to deliver his shocking message. "Quite," said the Prince.
"Thank you." He headed across the street for the Chope Cadet.

Sidney achieved the ascent of the stairs like a drunken alpinist and no doubt set motion immediately the maneuvers which eventually transferred him to the London bureau, in a country where such horrors could not occur. After all, he had already suffered the experience of being kicked down the stairs of the Ritz by Mrs. McCormick, mother of the paper's publisher (IET, April 25, 1972). Paris was getting pretty hard to take.

Though still unshakably the Prince of Wales for me, the Duke of Windsor had become thoroughly installed in that title for everybody else when the war broke out, facing the British government with the delicate problem of the role which might be played by a former king in wartime. It was solved, as perhaps almost nobody now remembers by naming him governor general of the Bahama Islands. It was just after this event that Walter B. Kerr, of the New York Herald Tribune's European edition, found himself thrown, suddenly and unprepared, into conversation with the duke at Lisbon. Momentarily out of small talk. Walter desperately hiurted out a compliment on the duke's appointment to that post. The duke regarded him souriv.

"Name any one of the Bahamas," he said. Walter finnked.
